Profile

Inga Hope is considered the #1 authority on teaching kids music and guitar through online lessons. Inga is the expert teacher other teachers go to when they need help with their teaching methods, materials and guitar lessons for kids.

Background

Inga is a professional and fully-trained guitar teacher who successfully completed a two-year teacher-training apprenticeship with a private mentor in New Zealand.

In 2009 she opened her own guitar teaching studio in a suburb of Auckland, New Zealand. By 2013 Inga had not only opened a further 3 private guitar studios around Auckland, but also written the Gentle Guitar™ method for kids and beginners.

In 2015 Inga moved to Denmark and began teaching one-to-one lessons online via Skype video conferencing. The lessons became a hit with the global homeschool community and today Inga and her team work with students from all over the world.

Highlights

Inga is the Headteacher and CEO at Gentle Guitar™ and a publisher of teaching and educational resources.

With a diploma in graphic design and digital media, Inga uses her creative skills to publish original teaching resources that private and public music teachers use to teach music to kids. Inga is also the editor and publisher of the Music Ed free digital magazine for parents and teachers. In a pioneering move, the magazine addresses both the music teacher and the parent.

Inga has been featured on the New Zealand's National Breakfast Show as an expert in kids music tuition and is making a name in the international homeschool scene as a speaker and music educator.

Inga lives and breathes music and desires to make teaching music to kids easier and more accessible for everyone involved. Her innovative take on kids music education and her creative spark make her a sought after speaker and author.
